Introduction

The Pocket Spell Creator

This book is designed to help you make up your own spells and find which ones and what type work best for you.

The book is divided into multiple sections, so you may choose a selection from each topic to create your final spell. This book is best used for browsing instead of reading straight through. Find what you need from each section to create your spells. At the end there are worksheet examples you can use to record your own spells and rituals along with their results so that you may look back and see what has had positive results for you, and also what hasn't.

To get started, skim through the entire book and familiarize yourself with the worksheets and the different sections.

Oil, Incense, and Bath Salts Recipes

Most of these recipes can be converted between oils, incense, and bath salts. Just pick the form you are most comfortable using and mix it accordingly. Of course, the herbs and/or plants must be available in oil form to combine them for oils or bath salts. Drops of oil can be converted to parts for dry materials.

Casting the Circle

Three times round I cast my blade,
That this Circle shall be made.
Sacred space within this Circle now lies,
Protected from unwelcome eyes.
Let no one enter here within,
Who has not been made welcome,
So mote it be.

Opening the Circle

The Circle is open, but unbroken.

Merry meet, merry part, and

Merry meet again.
